

Trimming trees

Upland crews active despite Prop. 13 cutbacks

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

"A lot of people have different ideas on how to trim trees. We very seldom get the same advice."

Whatever the advice, Ken Hoover, Upland's director of general services, said city policy is to trim street trees "severely."

Hoover explained that the city has some 57,000 street trees — those along public right-of-ways — and his department tries to trim each tree every five years.

When city crews trim a tree they want it to stay trimmed to avoid falling limbs and the potential hazard to pedestrians and motorists, added Don Niederlander, the city's tree maintenance foreman.

Once targeted as a Proposition 13 cutback, tree trimming was restored by the city council when the state passed legislation allocating surplus funds and remaining property tax.

Hoover noted Upland has three full-time crews, with a varying number of employees assigned to each, to take care of "everything from trimming to planting, doctoring, replacing" and spraying for insects in spring.

Hoover said his department does not encourage residents to do their own tree trimming. City crews can make a line of trees more "aesthetically uniform" if the trimming is left to them, he explained.

However, the city does encourage residents to take proper care of their trees. Hoover noted new residents receive a brochure giving tips from the city on tree care.

He pointed out "deep watering" prevents roots from growing along the surface. When the roots grow down in search of water, there is less chance the trees will lift city sidewalks.

(The city council will hold a public hearing Oct. 2 to consider transferring financial responsibility for sidewalk maintenance from the city to property owners. This year's budget allocates no funds for permanent sidewalk repairs.)

Hoover said deep watering can take place overnight or even for 24 hours. He added that a slow trickle will "barely move water meters."

He added that residents should cut visible surface roots that threaten sidewalk damage.

The general services department also advises residents to prevent ivy from growing up a tree for more than four feet.

Ivy can weaken a tree, making it subject to damage and disease.

Hoover gave residents mixed marks on how well they take of street trees. He noted some trees died for lack of water during last year's drought.

City crews are currently picking up some 30 fallen limbs a week, but Hoover said this figure is normal for summer. He added that there is not much residents can do to prevent limbs from falling.

Referring to a 1972 incident in Ontario where a falling limb paralyzed a woman and led to a $1.1 million damage award, Hoover said the city of Upland can never be 100 percent sure the same thing will not happen there.

He likened falling tree limbs to an "act of God" and added, "We do everything we can in good faith to prevent hazards."

Modesto ash, liquidambar and pepper trees are prevalent among Upland's street trees, Hoover noted. He added that Chinese elms are out and carotwoods are in.

Hoover said Chinese elms need trimming annually because their streamers grow quickly, hanging over streets and sidewalks and sometimes obscuring signs.

The carotwoods are the young trees planted on the Euclid Avenue median south of Foothill Boulevard in Upland. Hoover said these trees require relatively little maintenance and have proven their hardiness surviving last year's drought and this winter's rains.

Upland city employee Joe Flores reaches high from the basket of an aerial trimming truck to clip the limbs of a pepper tree. Ken Hoover, Upland's director of general services, said tree-trimming crews prune the pepper trees "severely" to prevent breakage and potential hazard to passing motorists and pedestrians. Upland has some 57,000 street trees, those along public right-of-ways, and Hoover said the city attempts to trim each tree every five years. He added that most Chinese elms are trimmed annually because of rapid growth of the "streamers" hanging down over streets and sidewalks. (Staff photo by Don Green)

Property in Upland

New construction drives assessed value up 5.5%

New construction pushed total assessed value of Upland property up 5.5 percent, bringing the adjusted market value of the property to more than $638.75 million, despite reappraisals mandated by Proposition 13.

Dave Bell, administrative assistant to the county assessor, reported Upland's secured property has an assessed valuation of $147.22 million and unsecured or unimproved property's assessed valuation is $12.47 million for 1978-79.

Total assessed valuation — without new utility figures supplied by the state — amounts to $159.69 million, compared to $151.38 million for 1977-78.

Although assessed valuation rose by 5.5 percent in Upland, Bell said the figure countywide was nearly 10.6 percent, almost twice Upland's increase.

Proposition 13 uses 1975-76 as the base year for establishing fair market value used to calculate the remaining 1 percent property tax that can be collected on market value.

Although properties appraised since 1975-76, except for new construction and transferred properties, were brought down to 1975-76 levels, many more properties had been last appraised before the base year.

The county assessor's office adjusted most properties to the 1975-76 assessment year. New construction and reappraisals accounted for the climb in assessed valuations in Upland and elsewhere in the county. Assessed valuation of utilities property in Upland for 1975-76 was $16.86 million, including the gross unsecured roll.

Upland Finance Director Anthony Andrade noted assessed valuation plays a less direct role in determining property tax under Proposition 13.

He added that assessments in the future would be related to market value in an "obscure way," because property changing hands will be reassessed while other property retained by current owners will not be.

State laws SB 154 and SB 2212 mandate the counties use a complicated formula in allocating the remaining property tax to cities and other governmental jurisdictions.

Andrade said Upland expects $975,000 as a "ball park figure" for its property tax allocation. He added that the city received $2.78 million in property for 1977-78.

Some $45,000 in delinquent property tax from last year will be added to the 1978-79 total, Andrade said.

Although the city forecast receiving $1.2 million in property tax when the council adopted the current budget in late June, Andrade said most of the apparent deficit is offset because Upland will receive more state surplus funds than originally expected.

Andrade said Upland now expects $660,000 from the state surplus toward the city's $12.9 million budget.

He estimated the difference between property tax and state surplus revenues expected in late June and the figures now anticipated might leave the city $65,000 short. However, he added Upland will adjust its street resurfacing projects to balance the budget.

Upland to draw up pact for new sewage plant

The Upland City Council authorized legal work not to exceed $2,000 toward a possible agreement with Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga to share a "package" treatment sewage plant.

At its meeting Monday night, the council agreed to retain attorney Frank Hamilton to prepare a contract. Hamilton's total fee will not exceed $6,000, and the three cities will share the expense equally.

The proposed package treatment plant would have 1.5 million-gallons-a-day capacity and would be located in Ontario next to regional plant No. 1 of the Chino Basin Municipal Water District.

The plant is called a "package" treatment facility because it could be disassembled and moved elsewhere, but City Engineer Fred Blanchard told the council moving the plant was unlikely.

Council members also approved the concept of financing Upland's share of the plant's cost through an existing $225 sewer connection charge.

Blanchard said Upland's share of the cost would come to about one-fourth the $900,000 estimated total for the project.

He added that the city would only pay for the plant as sewer connection charges were collected

Washable, pleasant odor

Upland firm to sell new paint

By GLENN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

An Upland paint firm Thursday announced what it considers a major product breakthrough, development of a latex-type paint for spray painting home interiors.

Al Davenport, president of Pacra Industries, producer of spray paints for hobbyists, said he expects Pacra Latex-Plus to be sold in the majority of U.S. retail paint outlets.

Davenport said major paint makers have been trying to develop such a product for 20 years.

According to Davenport, the new product overcomes four traditional objections to spray painting home interiors:

— It can be washed off with water, window cleaner or water and soap, eliminating use of paint thinner which can damage finishes on furniture.

— Also because it can be washed off easily, repairing "runs" and cleaning hands and clothes is easier.

— It has "a pleasant odor that goes away quickly" in place of petroleum solvent vapors which have an unpleasant odor and are considered harmful to breathe.

— It can legally be sold to those under 18, unlike petroleum solvent spray paints which, besides having an unpleasant odor, are sometimes sniffed by minors.

Davenport said he can't estimate what impact the new product will have on the paint market, but he said all of the five paint buyers who have so far received previews have bought the product.

Initially, the paint will be sold through paint, hardware and chain store outlets in 14 Western and Southern states. It will go into national distribution later this year.

The ingredients are a patented secret, but Davenport said the paint is a hybrid, not a true latex. He said it is durable and has high gloss and good adhesion.

The company said the new paint's aerosol propellants will not include fluorocarbons, subjects of concern about damaging the Earth's outer atmosphere.

Pacra, located at 420 S. 11th Ave., Upland, got its start in an Ontario garage after World War II when it was founded by Davenport and two USC fraternity brothers, Richard Newton and James R. Joyce.

Their initial production line was a 15-gallon mixing drum connected to an enema hose used to fill bottles set up in the Ontario garage of Newton's father.

Adrian Chalfant, an early school friend of Davenport and Newton, rescued them by designing the company's first bottling machine, then stayed on to join Davenport in buying out Newton.

Growing successfully in the hobby paint field, Pacra in 1961 established a 100,000-square-foot manufacturing facility on 10 acres in Upland.

The firm currently markets 1,500 items in 34 separate lines.

Davenport directs marketing and financial operations while Chalfant is in charge of 250 manufacturing employees in two factories.

Arguments opposing freeway's extension due Sept. 5 in Upland

Opponents of the proposed extension of the Foothill Freeway have until 5 p.m. Sept. 5 to file ballot arguments against the extension for the November referendum in Upland.

City Clerk Dee Carpenter said arguments for and against the freeway are limited to a maximum of 300 words each. She added that the opposition argument would be selected according to priorities spelled out in the state election code.

The city council has decided to draft the ballot argument in support of the freeway extension.

The three members present at the meeting voted to have all five council members draft and sign the ballot argument.

Mrs. Carpenter explained that election code states members of the legislative body involved take first preference for writing ballot arguments.

All five council members favor extension of the freeway.

State Transportation Director Adriana Gianturco has called for a full review of the proposed extension and cited arguments against keeping the freeway route in her report to the new state Transportation Commission.

The commission has not yet scheduled the proposed extension for consideration.

Since Upland will carry only one ballot argument for the freeway and one argument against — with no rebuttals — the council action Monday night preempted others from getting a favorable argument on the ballot.

However, the council could get assistance from groups — such as the Foothill Freeway Association — and individuals in drafting its argument.

Mrs. Carpenter said a "bona fide" association opposed to the freeway extension would have first preference for the con argument on the ballot under the election code.

However, there is no existing formal group opposed to freeway extension. A group of voters would apparently take top priority, with individual voter's arguments ranking lowest on the election code preference list, according to Mrs. Carpenter.

Arguments against the freeway extension may be submitted without charge to the city clerk. Mrs. Carpenter added that the person submitting the argument must sign an affidavit form.

A maximum of five signatures may accompany each argument.

Cross-city markings planned

Upland seeks funds for bikeway

Upland is applying for state funds needed to make 16th Street a cross-city bikeway.

The city council last week authorized application for $15,500 in gas tax (SB 325) funds marked for bicycle and pedestrian facilities.

Rod Anderson, Upland's grant administrator, said the application would bring the fund total to $31,790, enough to mark 16th Street as a bikeway and to use $7,260 to repair the Eighth Street sidewalk north of Olivedale Park.

Application for the state money is submitted first to San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG) and then to the Southern California Association of Governments, the regional organization which gives final approval.

State law mandates 2 percent of gas tax money returned to cities and counties be used for bicycle and pedestrian facilities.

Anderson noted the city has already placed protective bars across storm drain grates to prevent bike tires from slipping into the crevices.

Upland has signs ready for posting on 16th Street from the western city limits to Campus Avenue. City Engineer Fred Blanchard said these signs might be posted before the final leg of the bikeway is finished.

Blanchard has said 16th Street from Campus Avenue east to Upland's boundary with Rancho Cucamonga is currently too narrow for a bikeway.

Upland may receive $150,000 in state funds in 1979 to improve the easterly stretch of 16th Street, and Blanchard said widening could allow room for the bikeway.

Otherwise, Upland would use its bicycle and pedestrian allocation to construct a separate asphalt trail five to eight feet off the street for bikes, Blanchard said.

City officials so far have regarded 16th Street as the only Upland street wide enough for a cross-city bikeway. Baseline Road in Claremont is used as a bikeway to Upland city limits, where the street becomes 16th.

Upland's application for $15,500 is part of the $211,309 sought countywide for bicycle and pedestrian projects.

Blanchard noted the city does not plan to designate the bikeway by striping 16th Street. Among the objection raised to striping a bike lane, he said, is that the painted line gives some riders a "false sense of security."

Upland councilmen meet on Tuesday

Due to the Labor Day holiday Monday, the Upland City Council will meet 7 p.m. Tuesday at city hall, 460 N. Euclid Ave.

The council will consider placing a six-month moratorium on accepting new applications for development on Euclid Avenue from the San Bernardino Freeway north to 13th Street.

The proposed urgency ordinance exempts single-family homes from the moratorium on filings.

Envelope honoring racing to be issued in Ontario

By RICK LARSEN
Staff Writer

Because the U.S. Postal Service raised the price of mailing letters, Ontario was chosen the site for the release of an embossed stamped envelope honoring auto racing.

Ontario Postmaster Chuck Linck said this was the first time a commemorative issue has officially been released here.

"It's great," Linck said. "It's a wonderful thing."

The commemorative envelope is being issued in conjunction with the California 500 auto race. The envelope is being released Saturday, one day before the race.

The envelope features an Indianapolis 500 type racing car, portrayed in red, blue and black. The design is superimposed on a blue background. An embossed white circle appears immediately behind the car and the words "Auto Racing" are shown in one line of black type at the upper left corner.

Commemorative envelope honors racing.

The envelope costs 15 cents.

Robert Peak of Greenwich, Conn., designed the auto racing envelope. He had previously designed the 1969 College Football stamp.

Subjects and designs for stamps, or stamped envelopes, are chosen by a Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee. Jack Williams, Postal Service information officer, said subjects are chosen from a list of recommended topics sent in by the general public, members of Congress and stamp collectors.

"We get ideas from all over," he said.

Ontario was not the initial choice for the city of issue, according to Williams.

"Something as mundane as production schedule was responsible," he said.

Originally, the U.S. Postal Service wanted to release the envelope at the Indianapolis 500 race, but the new fee meant the envelope had to be redesigned, Williams explained.

"We looked around for another race of 500 miles which also had the type of car depicted on the stamp," he said.

Ontario was the obvious choice. "We like to associate the release of items in conjunction with an event they commemorate," he said.

The local post office plans some special events Saturday in connection with the envelope's release.

"There will be two mobile post office units outside the admission gates of the Ontario Motor Speedway," Donette Durso, manager of retail sales for the Postal Service, said. "These will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m."

Orders for the first day cancellations may be addressed to Auto Racing Envelope, Postmaster, Ontario, CA 91761. Two sizes of envelopes will be available. However, the post office said the 6 1/2 - size envelope will be sent unless the larger Number 10 envelope is requested.

The cost for the first day cancellations will be 18 cents per envelope. Orders must be postmarked by Sept. 2.

The post office requests customers send either a self-addressed envelope of an appropriate size or include return address labels with their orders.

Ontario swim pools to close on Saturday

The city of Ontario swimming pools will remain open for recreational swimming through Saturday.

The pools are open daily for three one-hour sessions. Sessions are scheduled from 1 to 2 p.m., 2:15 to 3:15 p.m., and 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Fee for recreational swimming is 50 cents.

Coping With Stress Workshop offered to the public on Sept. 5

A second Coping With Stress Workshop will be offered to the public on Tuesday, Sept. 5, from 7 to 10 p.m. at the San Bernardino Valley College Campus Center building, San Bernardino.

From 7 to 8, there will be a film, "Stress - Your Own Worst Enemy," Clarence Romero, Ph.D., on Coping With Stress and the introduction of workshop leaders.

Those participating then may attend workshops of their choices from 8 to 9 and from 9 to 10. Workshops will be situated around the Campus Center.

Self-Hypnosis will be instructed by Dick Dodge, Ph.D., Stress Reduction Center of Riverside. This workshop will introduce a means for learning how to relax and improve the ability to concentrate.

Kundalini Yoga will be facilitated by Gurubanda Singh Khalsa of the San Bernardino County Department of Mental Health. This involves a meditation technique for increasing awareness of the inner self, thereby reducing and eliminating stress.

Meditation will be led by Dick Eckert, San Bernardino County Department of Mental Health. This will offer an opportunity to learn and practice several different approaches to relaxation.

Tai Chi will be taught by Erick Hornak, an instructor at Johnston College. This is a dance for relaxation, a meditation in movement.

The $2 registration should be made payable to the Central Valley Mental Health Association, 136 N. Riverside Ave., Rialto, CA 92376.

Coping With Stress is being co-sponsored by the San Bernardino County Department of Mental Health, Stress Reduction Center of Riverside, San Bernardino Valley College and Central Valley Mental Health Association.

Blood mobile to set up in Rancho Cucamonga

A special blood mobile will be set up at the Rancho Cucamonga Elks Lodge Thursday from 4 to 7 p.m., to help secure more blood for the Labor Day weekend.

The Elks Lodge is located at 12481 Base Line Road, formerly the Regina Winery. Blood donations may be made to whoever the donor designates.

Their newest facility located at 420 E. 7th St., in Upland will hold an open house on Sept. 8 - 10.

Booksbury is a private non-sectarian school that stresses accelerated academics for students. Each class is taught by a California State Credentialed teacher, and class size is limited.

The school program will include many extra curricular activities such as Spanish lessons, baton, ballet music and art lessons.

Supervisors to work on problem

Nurses threaten mass resignation

By GLENN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

County supervisors agreed Monday to personally seek solutions to the County Medical Center nurses' shortage that has caused nurses to threaten mass resignations which would force the hospital to close.

The shortage of nurses and other hospital personnel has caused center administrators to divert some patients to other hospitals to reduce the patient population.

Nurses told the supervisors Monday the problem is that approximately 30, or 25 percent, of the center's nursing positions are vacant even though, paradoxically, there are 7,000 registered nurses in the county who do not hold nurses' jobs.

Shortages of nurses are occurring in hospitals throughout the state.

After hearing the pleas from the nurses, board members agreed that the problem is serious and said they want to find solutions.

It was agreed that Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino, the board chairman, and Robert Hammock of San Bernardino would meet privately with nurses' representatives.

All ambulance traffic which would normally go to the center has already been shifted to other hospitals to cut down on emergency surgeries.

In addition, some emergency room patients have been transferred to Loma Linda University Hospital and all elective surgeries have been canceled.

William E. Davis, associate administrator, said Monday that these actions have succeeded in cutting the patient population from 150-160 to 130-140, close to the level "where we can provide good care."

The seven nurses who appeared before the supervisors all complained that the hospital has been so short-staffed that they have been unable to do their jobs adequately.

Sharon Vierheller, an intensive care and coronary care nurse, said that on a recent 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift she was one of only two registered nurses watching over nine patients in the intensive care and coronary care units.

If one patient required emergency treatment, the others "would barely get looked at," she said. She told the supervisors, "That frightens you. You've got eight patients you can't look at. It scares you to death."

The principal representative of the nurses, DeAnna Ellerbroek, said she had in her briefcase resignations from 52 nurses for submission Sept. 20 if sufficient progress is not being made by that date.

She submitted to supervisors a letter asking for:

— A pay differential for nurses who work in specialized units such as the intensive care and coronary care units.

— Premium pay for nurses who work on holidays.

— Partial fringe benefits for part-time personnel.

— Round-the-clock child care facilities.

— An increase in overall pay.

Mrs. Ellerbroek said the medical center is crucial to medical care in the county because of its specialized capabilities including handling of accident and trauma cases.

Peter Roth, one of the registered nurses who spoke, was asked what should be done to attract more nurses.

He said that for those who are new graduates, efforts should be made to stress their responsibility to work if they have received training.

For those who are already in the community but not working as nurses, the county should try to offer some benefits "just a little bit better" than other hospitals, he said.

He said the "best advertising would be from registered nurses to other registered nurses that we have something substantial to offer."

One of the problems is that pay increases are forbidden by the law which grants state surplus money to local governments to help them cope with Proposition 13.

Richard C. Stearns, general manager of the San Bernardino Public Employees Association, said different agencies throughout the state are giving varying interpretations to that legal limit.

It may be that nothing can be done or it may be that calls to Sacramento to would produce "something that would pass muster," he said.

Supervisor James L. Mayfield said nurses representatives should testify in Sacramento for legislation that would exempt hospital personnel from the pay raise ban.

Play equipment

Alta Lomans work to improve 'wasteland'

Alta Lomans who believe their school district is too strapped by Proposition 13 to afford playground equipment are seeking donations.

Goals have been set for each of Alta Loma School District's three elementary schools and the junior high school. A total of $40,000 is the goal.

Ann Olander, vice-chairperson of the Playground Equipment Committee, said two Alta Loma buildings have already contributed about $9,000 toward the fund.

"It's like a wasteland now," Mrs. Olander said of the playgrounds within the Alta Loma district.

She said the Alta Loma area has few community parks and play areas as alternatives to schoolyard recreation.

The committee, which is chaired by Alta Loma school board President Linda Frost, has obtained scale models of playground equipment it would like to buy. Recreational Designs Ltd. of Riverside has so far made the committee the best offer, said Mrs. Olander.

The $40,000 is to pay for jungle gyms, swings, slides and other typical playground equipment. Some of the money is to go for balance beams, rope climbing material and athletic uniforms as well, said Mrs. Olander.

When all the money has been collected, Carnelian School is to get $5,305, Jasper School is to get $8,108, Alta Loma School is to get $6,941 and Alta Loma Junior High School is to get $7,302. All other money will pay for equipment at Floyd Stork School that is to be completed later this year.

Mrs. Olander said the committee plans to buy equipment as money becomes available rather than wait for a lump sum purchase.

The committee hopes school PTAs and community service clubs will contribute to the cause, said Mrs. Olander.

Though all the Alta Loma schools need more recreational play equipment, Jasper and Alta Loma schools appear to need the most, she said.

Checks for playground equipment may be made out to the Playground Equipment Committee, 5632 Emerald St., Alta Loma, 91701.

Area telephone service disrupted by overload

By DONALD J. NEWMAN
Staff Writer

Local residents who might be feeling a little frustrated with scrambled telephone service can take comfort in knowing that they are not alone.

"It's going on all over Southern California," explained Jack King, a public affairs administrator for the General Telephone Co. which serves the West End.

"Ontario, Upland and Rancho Cucamonga are getting their fair share of it," he added.

The problem stems from an overload on local equipment, a situation which will not be resolved tomorrow, according to King, who said his company has gone so far as to borrow equipment in a frantic game of catch-up.

"There are an awful lot of people trying to place an awful lot of calls on Mondays," said King, adding that the situation may improve somewhat later in the week.

The situation "is better on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and sometimes on Friday than it is on Mondays," he said.

Next Tuesday, Sept. 4, which follows a three-day weekend, will probably be a disaster as far as telephone service is concerned, predicted King.

"It's probably going to be worse than it is today," he said.

An "industrywide telephone equipment shortage" is to be blamed for the lack of sufficient equipment to match the growth in this part of the state, explained King.

While the telephone company can wait as long as two years before it can put ordered equipment in service, requests for telephone service are increasing at an unanticipated rate.

Long distance traffic has increased 34 percent in the last year and in the last five years the local telephone company has added 17,800 phones to its system, according to King.

The nationwide demand "has exceeded the manufacturers' ability to produce" equipment, he said.

As soon as new equipment is installed the capability to handle additional service is "eaten up" by the demand, explained King, saying that telephone company officers know what is going on.

"We are very much aware of the situation," he said, adding that he too has trouble calling from his office.

But "we are making progress. We're adding stuff (equipment and manpower) every day," he said.

Assisting program's new look

The Chaffey College Dental Assisting Program will have a new look starting this September. It will be a one-year program plus six weeks in office training during the summer.

Emphasis will be placed on the development of skills that are necessary for today's assistant, a program spokesman said.

This program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for the Dental and Dental Auxiliary Educational Program and is recognized by the Board of Dental Examiners for the teaching of the registered dental assistant. Graduates of the program are eligible for examination by the certifying board of the American Dental Assistant Association and for the Registered Dental Assistant Examination.

Students may register for the program on Aug. 30 and 31 and Sept. 5 and 6.

There are job opportunities in general dentistry and dental specialties, through both private and group practices, hospitals, federal, state and community clinics. With further education and experience, the field of dental assisting education offers opportunities in teaching and administrative positions.

Your Good Health & Chiropractic

Dear Doctor:

I've been suffering from migraine headaches for many years. I take aspirin, but it upsets my stomach and doesn't really seem to help that much.

Sometimes the headaches become so severe that I can't even work or do anything. At those times I get terribly discouraged and wonder if I'll ever be able to lead a normal life again. Is there anything you can do for me? Mrs. C.K.

the result of nerve pressure. In such cases, the unique hollow bones of the spinal column, called vertebrae, have been found to be out of place.

When this happens, the nerves within their protective centers are pinched and the result is pain - pain that tells the brain there is trouble in the body. Some headache sufferers obtain almost instant relief through Chiropractic care as the vertebrae are put back into place and the nerve pressure relieved. In other cases, it takes longer before the pinched nerves can regain full normal function. While it is impossible to tell if Chiropractic can help your particular case without examining you, I would urge you to consult a Doctor of Chiropractic for your problem. Needless suffering is without reason, and there is no better example than the suffering brought on by migraine.

(Note: Dr. Helzer maintains chiropractic offices at 108 East H Street, Ontario, telephone: 983-1711.) (C) ARS 1971.

There are an estimated twenty million victims of migraine headaches in the United States. Believe me, every single one of them suffers just as much pain and anxiety as you do, and every single one of them would like to find a solution to their problem. Most take aspirin or other analgesics to relieve the pain, or are on prescription drugs which accomplish the same purpose, they lessen the pain without really doing anything to solve the problem.

Many people fail to realize that most headaches, including migraine, are

Rotarian governor visits locally

Helping to plan better ways of serving this community, Rotary District Governor "Jolly" Batcheller will visit the Rotary Club of Rancho Cucamonga on Tuesday Sept. 5, 1978, according to Bruce Smith, president of the local service organization.

Batcheller heads Rotary International's District 530 this year, and comes to the local club to learn of their service plans for the year. Batcheller and Smith have been working on the plans for more than a year.

Batcheller has praised the local club for its support of the American Youth Soccer Association, Little League, and for initiating its conservation project by providing local fourth grade children with trees to plant. The club has contributed to the support of educational projects in Bangladesh by helping to provide students with books.

Recently the local club gave playground equipment for Rancho Cucamonga's new city park located on Beryl Avenue above 19th Street. Each year the club also sends two high school students to Rotary's Leadership Training Conference at Camp Cedar-crest in the San Bernardino Mountains. The Rancho Cucamonga club also provides two scholarships or grants in aid for a young man and a young lady attending Chaffey College. This year's recipients were Ed Capparelli and Teresa Ellis, 1978 graduates of Alta Loma High School. Batcheller has been a member of the Claremont Rotary Club for 20 years.

Garfield finds dark peaceful

Blindness misunderstood

By LYNNE LOCKE

"Blindness is so misunderstood by the sighted public," commented James Garfield, writer of "Follow My Leader," a children's book about a blind boy and his guide dog.

"You're looking into the dark, through the dark, at the dark. You're the only thing (there). The dark is peaceful, beautiful," he recently told a group of Whittier teen-agers.

But, he added: "There is no such thing as a blind person not being frustrated. I have bumps all over my head (from running into unseen objects). There is no handicapped person in the world who hasn't gone to sleep on a wet pillow."

Blindness isn't a handicap; it's a hurdle, said Garfield who has been blind for "30 or 40" of his 96 years.

To combat blindness, he said, "I made it my business not to be sorry for myself. I taught myself to be the kind of human being I would like for a friend."

And, Garfield added, "I've gotten over it (the hurdle of blindness) very well. I wanted to have a devil of a good time living and I'm having it."

Garfield has spent much of his time the last few years talking to students.

"I'm anxious to teach what I can about working with handicapped people," he explained, adding that it is important not to feel sorry for handicapped people.

Garfield became blind slowly when his optic nerve "dried up" for no discernable reason.

At first, he said, "it was difficult to see things. And then finally there was no use looking."

The person who is born blind has the advantage of being "native to blindness. I had to learn how to be blind."

But, Garfield added, have been sighted has advantages too. "I know what the word 'vista' means, what the moon looks like. I have impressions to hug to my soul and to love."

Garfield, who has his fourth guide dog, wrote "Follow My Leader" in 1952.

There had never been a children's book about blindness, he said and added, "Publishers said the book wouldn't sell (because nobody's interested in reading about a blind boy)."

But "Follow My Leader" is in its 14th printing, and Garfield noted, "It has taught so much to the sighted public."

Blind people weren't treated as citizens 100 years ago. "They couldn't vote; they couldn't get education. All they could do was sit on the street and beg," Garfield said, people fuller lives came commenting the changes slowly and there is still a lot which allow blind people to be done.

Author combats 'slip of tongue'

Correct speech is the current interest of blind author James Garfield.

"Walking and talking are the two things that come naturally and are the two things people do badly," he said, adding, "Communication is so important. What would the world be without communication?"

Garfield, who often visits schools to talk about blindness, said, "You can't say words with the tongue in only one position. But mostly the kids do. That's why we can't understand them."

"The problem is then the teachers learn to talk the same way so their students will understand them. I fight that."

Garfield said people must teach their tongues flexibility in order to speak correctly.

Each letter consists of two tongue positions, so most words consist of many tongue movements, he said and noted to say even one word the tongue needs to be as flexible as fingers playing a piano.

In addition, Garfield said, most people have the habit of speaking just the first syllable or two of a word "and letting the rest go."

He blames the "look and say" school of teaching reading for the way people slur words.

"They know the can't pronounce it, so they hurry and try to get rid of it."

A good vocabulary and imagination are both important to good speech, said Garfield who worked on Broadway for three seasons as a young man.

A person who has really visualized a word picture can say the word so the listener pictures the scene too, he commented.

In an unusual effort to remind drivers that holiday drinking and driving don't mix, Ken Minyard, seated, co-anchor of KABC's "Talkradio," will drink alcoholic beverages steadily on - air from 5-9 a.m. Friday morning. Minyard will be monitored throughout the program by, from left, Sgt. Rudy Green of the Los Angeles Police Department; Lisa Reinhardt of the National Council on Alcoholism, Los Angeles County; LAPD Traffic Safety Specialist Tom Vincello; and Bob Arthur, Newstalk co-anchor.

Preparation for holiday travel leaves more enjoyment time

Preparations for traveling on the Labor Day weekend, possibly the last family outing period before school starts again, offer a logical time to check over those few simple steps that should precede any motoring trip.

"Let your motto be 'Plan Ahead,'" advises Donald Treichler, public safety manager for the Automobile Club of Southern California. "First, reserve space wherever you intend to go. Most state parks and state beaches require reservations. For the upcoming Labor Day weekend, however, all major state park and state beach areas are sold out. National park sites are available on a first-come, first-served basis."

Second, he continued, put your car or recreational vehicle in shape before leaving. Have the service station attendant check all fluid levels (engine oil, coolant, water, battery, etc.) and tire pressure. Replace worn tires and repair faulty brakes. While they're traveling, Treichler continued, motorists should pull off the highway every two hours to refresh themselves, clean their windshield, change more than seven hours of driving per day," he added.

Campus visitors stand on steps in front of the Kresge Chapel, a dominant building at the School of Theology at Claremont. It was built in 1973.

Student diversity valued at School of Theology

By LINDA BROWNING
Staff Writer

When Richard W. Cain came to the Claremont School of Theology last July to serve as president of the seminary, he wanted to "unify the school, and yet give all denominations and all parts of the seminary autonomy."

There are 31 different denominations at the school and many of the students are from out-of-state or other countries. Yet Cain sees the varying religious beliefs as good for the school's growth.

"We don't want to mix all the various faiths up in one. We respect differences. Being true to one's faith, whatever it is, is what I want to see here," he said.

The school's normally small enrollment, conducive to a community atmosphere, is lowest in the summer months.

But Cain said there have been numerous temporary students this summer, many of whom attend workshops or seminars.

Professors Evelyn and James Whitehead from Notre Dame University teach such a workshop on adult growth and ministerial leadership.

"It is a two-week course. Since the class is for continuing theology students, all have had experience in the ministry. The way we do the class is to combine my husband's background in theology and mine in psychology," Mrs. Whitehead said.

"The class looks at the ministers' religious insights and psychological resources, and we try to translate those into concrete symbols for them," she said.

Mrs. Whitehead sees the workshop format as useful because of its concentrated form, especially for professionals who need to make the best use of their time.

As in many other workshops being held at Claremont this summer, the students represent a wide age range and many denominational differences.

"The most startling aspect of Claremont school is the diversity of the class we have. We have two Japanese people, one who is an experienced clergyman and one who is a woman just starting out in her religious studies. And we have someone from Tonga, a Hispanic American, two black Americans and both men and women," Mrs. Whitehead said.

In addition, she said, there are Methodists, Church of Christ members, Presbyterians and Roman Catholics in the class.

Such diversity is just what Cain is striving for.

"What I want most to offer at the school is quality education. And that rests with the faculty, who are of fantastic quality. The faculty have specialties, and they bring those particular interests to varied groups," the president said.

Unlike directors of many growing institutions, Cain doesn't want the school to get much larger, either in size or enrollment.

"What we really need is new housing for the students and maybe a new dining room, though that's farther off in the future. Immediately speaking, I want to build up an endowment fund that is about $10 million or $15 million," he said.

As it is, the theology school must raise more than $1 million per year to meet its operating budget.

"We receive donations from different institutions and churches, of course. But that's not enough, since our budget is $1.7 million this year," Cain said.

"It's been like this since we started here in 1956. We started out with nothing, and now look at us. The idea is to take one day a step at a time," Cain said.

Mary Margaret Benson, head of technical services at the School of Theology at Claremont, goes through the rare book room's oldest book, Thomas Aquinas' "Summa Theologiae," 1474.

"David and Goliath," a costumed musical play, will be performed 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9 at the Covina Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1067 E. Badillo St., Covina. The Glendale City Adventist Church Children's Choir will perform in traditional costume and style while the adult choir and orchestra will present the oratorio as a modern day parable. Included with the Glendale choir will be a select group from the Covina Church choir.

The public is invited to the free performance.

Ministry training program set

A one-day training program for persons who work with students and young adults in congregational settings and campus ministries will be offered Sept. 16 by the University of Southern California Institute for Changing Ministries and the Los Angeles metropolitan program of the Lutheran Campus Ministry of Southern California.

Though aimed primarily at Lutherans, the student-youth adult ministry conference is open to laity and clergy of all faiths. It will be held in USC's Davidson Conference Center.

The Sept. 16 program has three parts, according to the Rev. Bill Jeffs, director of the Los Angeles Lutheran Metropolitan Ministries program.

"First, we want to expose participants to materials and techniques that can be used as they work with their constituents," he said and noted participants will choose 2-3 workshops.

Workshop subjects include music and dance, ecology as a way of life, creative workshop, minority ministries, drama, retreats, community college ministry, intentional communities and diaconate training.

"We will conclude the program," Jeffs added, "with an afternoon session that helps participants in program planning that will be effective in their congregations and communities."

Fee for the conference is $5. To register, telephone Mrs. Turner, (213) 741-2410.

Dinin to be jointly employed

Temple gains youth director

The new educational director at Temple Beth Ami, West Covina is Michael Dinin who just graduated from the University of Judaism with a master's degree in education.

Dinin will be jointly employed by Temple Beth Ami of West Covina and Temple Beth Torah of Alhambra. He is a graduate of the Los Angeles Hebrew High School and earned a B.S. in recreation from California State University, Northridge.

He served as youth director at Temple Sinai, Los Angeles. While he was studying at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, he served in the Israeli army. He also lived for one year in a kibbutz and worked as the winter program coordinator at Camp Ramah.

As youth director he will design, develop and implement a comprehensive youth program. As director of education he will administer the temples' religious schools from pre-kindergarten to post-confirmation, develop a curriculum and school program that will implement the philosophy of the temples.

For the coming school year several programs and festivals will be planned bringing the two temple schools together at one facility. Joint faculty consisting of teachers from both schools, will be supplemented by other part-time personnel.

A parallel curriculum will be developed jointly by both schools with the supervision and cooperation of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Los Angeles.

The new educational director will be guided by the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Los Angeles consultants assigned to the two temple schools and will work under the direct supervision of both rabbis, Martin Douglas, D.H.L., D.D., Temple Beth Torah, Alhambra and Henry E. Kraus, Ph.D., D.D., Temple Beth Ami, West Covina.

It is believed to be the first time in the United States that a Bureau of Jewish Education is helping a joint venture between two congregations to develop quality education for their religious schools and youth programs.

Dinin is the son of Dr. Samuel Dinin, vice president emeritus of the University of Judaism, and educator who served as the first director of the Los Angeles Bureau of Jewish Education.

Temple Beth Ami, which is affiliated with the United Synagogue of America, offers a full educational program from pre-kindergarten to post-confirmation and a complete youth program. The Jewish community is invited to visit the temple and talk about the educational and social opportunities for children. The temple is located at 3508 E. Temple Way, West Covina. For information call (213) 331-0515.

Guest Column:

Civil Service reform has grown horns, tail

By Richard L. Leshner

With the American people firmly of the opinion that federal employees are too numerous and too well-paid now, with illegal public employee strikes disrupting life all over the country, and with congressional rejection of the AFL-CIO's "union organizers" act, you might think that giving federal employee unions more power would be the last thing on the minds of your senators and representatives.

You would be wrong. Civil Service Reform, which started life as a promising youngster, has grown horns and a tail. President Carter's initial reform proposal looked good, and we said so. His stated objective was to make the bureaucracy more manageable, more efficient, and more responsive to the taxpayers. To do that, he proposed to replace the Civil Service Commission with an Office of Personnel Management and a Merit Systems Protection Board; establish a Senior Executive Service for top echelon managers; create efficiency-promoting incentives for supervisors; establish better measure of performance, productivity and output; limit veterans preferences; and set up a research program for personnel policy. Reduced to its simplest terms, the president wanted a means for: — Identifying the dead wood. — Pruning it out. The thought of anyone accomplishing such objectives alarms the federal employee unions and their allies, so they have been maneuvering to reverse the effect of the reform legislation. The union strategy is two-phased. First, they want to make it all but impossible to prune anything. And second, they want to strengthen the political power of the federal unions, to facilitate attainment of their future objectives. (Also, to guard their rear against the threat of Proposition 13-type economy moves.) To gain the first union objective, the "reform" bills in the House (HR-11280) and the Senate (S-2640) would create a Federal Labor Relations Authority, patterned after the National Labor Relations Board. It could be counted on to frustrate any presidential attempts to achieve greater efficiency at the peril of a union sinecure. Both bills would also expand the powers and jurisdiction of the federal employee unions, the House versions being worse than the Senate's in this respect.

To gain their second objective, the unions want to repeal the Hatch Act, something they tried — and failed — to do as recently as last year. The Hatch Act is actually a protection for the federal employees since it prevents them from being pressured by their superiors to engage in political activity on behalf of the candidates of the party in power. But obviously, it would be more convenient for the public employee unions if they could openly mobilize and use the millions of civil servants to apply political pressure for their own benefit. (Leshner is president of the National Chamber of Commerce.)

Administration hampers sales overseas as U.S. dollar falls

By Jim Lloyd

While the value of the U.S. dollar continues to fall internationally, the administration fails to adequately understand the need for enhancement of our foreign markets and international sales. As a result, the administration actually hampers overseas sales. U.S. business becomes the primary sufferer.

We were once a nation of superb horse traders who bargained the United States into prosperous international leadership. However, sometimes it appears that prosperity is viewed as endless.

Fortunately, there are some who realize that a prosperous nation, in order to survive, cannot rest on past achievements forever.

The horse traders and inventors, and descendants of that energetic and visionary breed, still exist. But the administration and in some cases Congress itself, have allowed red tape to hurt trade. Bureaucrats wield extraordinary veto powers which are absolutely inconsistent with economic reality.

American companies are being thwarted in their attempts to sell abroad. Selling abroad helps balance trade and strengthen the dollar.

There are $22 million dollars in non-military general aviation sales to Argentina being held up by the Commerce Department waiting for a go ahead from the State Department's Bureau of Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs. This is just one example, out of many.

Let's take a look at just one of the sales — the Fairchild Corp.'s Swearingen air ambulance sale to Argentina. The approval of an export license, valued at $1.6 million, had been pending in the Department of Commerce for $2½ months. It was refused last week.

Now Argentina probably will turn to Mitsubishi Aircraft of Japan, or to France for a Falcon jet. How could the sale of an air ambulance negatively influence any human rights policy?

A recent magazine article quoted an official of the human rights bureau as saying that there is no list of countries where human rights is considered a problem and added that existence of such a list would constitute a policy.

The official added that attempts are under way to develop an "early warning system" for manufacturers, but none now exists. American companies are working in the dark. This is a disgrace to the whole free enterprise system in our country.

I have testified for the House Ways and Means Committee's Subcommittee on Trade and testimony to the International Affairs Committee. I will continue to lead this fight until our trade system is more realistic.

The only one being hurt through all this is American business and the American economy. The United States is a leader in advanced technology for many fields. Countries look to the United States first, but they'll go elsewhere for second-rate equipment if they can't get first-rate equipment here. Irresponsible idealism should not be allowed to replace sound fiscal management. If that occurs, the very foundation and economic strength on which this country was created will slowly crumble.

(Lloyd, a Democrat, is U.S. representative to the 35th District, which includes San Dimas, La Verne, most of Walnut, Montclair, Upland, and Rancho Cucamonga.)

Book gives tips to condo buyer

More than half the population of the United States will be living in some form of condominium housing within 20 years, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development says in a booklet designed to help potential buyers understand the concept of condominium ownership.

The free, 48-page booklet, "Questions About Condominiums: What to Ask Before You Buy," can be obtained by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Department 586E, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Health Tips

'Glamorous' feminine hygiene products are not necessary

In recent years an aura of myth and mystery has grown around the subject of feminine hygiene. Much of this is due to dramatic advertising of "hygiene" products which gives the impression that unless the American woman uses a particular deodorant, spray or similar product she is neither clean nor desirable. Some of the products glamorized in advertising actually cause more harm than charm.

Medical authorities agree that feminine hygiene sprays, deodorants, and powders are unnecessary. Odor in the vaginal area usually comes from perspiration and from the collection of unneeded cells which the body throws off.

The best way to remove these odor-causing factors is by daily bathing with warm water and milk, non-perfumed soap.

Excessive soaping and hard scrubbing with a washcloth should be avoided — as should the use of soaps with hexachlorophene which may cause irritation.

Douching may be another problem-causer. Most doctors agree that douching is unnecessary. Many of the most popular douche preparations on the market are too strong for the delicate tissues of the vaginal area and disturb the normal acid balance of the vagina.

Women who feel they should douche after intercourse or to remove a discharge should realize that some discharge is perfectly normal. A woman's vagina normally bathes in its own secretions.

This washing process results in a white, non-irritating discharge which is normal. Abnormal discharges generally are discolored — yellow, brown or blood-tinged — and usually are accompanied by pain and itching. Such problems should be reported to your doctor.

It is important to remember that a woman's vagina is meant to be moist. This moisture acts as a lubricant. A dry vagina is normal only in children and elderly women.

Pregnant women and women on the Pill are often more prone to vaginal itching and discharge problems.

Obviously, benefits of the Pill or other medication prescribed by your doctor must be balanced against any disadvantages that might arise.

Another area of odor-causing complaint comes from the wearing of pantyhose and nylon panties. Excessive perspiration and odor are the natural results of wearing these garments.

If pantyhose are worn, wear cotton panties under them for better absorption and remove the pantyhose as soon as possible. Use mild, non-perfumed, non-detergent soaps in laundering pantyhose and panties.

Bikini weather can bring about odor problems if a woman shaves the hair around the genital area, since this hair protects the skin from tight friction and excessive stimulation of the local sweat glands.

It is not uncommon for doctors to find that cotton tampons have become dislodged and remain in the vagina to act as an irritant and become the source of odorous discharge. The vagina clears itself within a few hours after the tampon is removed.

To sum up the case for true feminine hygiene as opposed to the age of advertising's version: the less use, worry and fuss about artificial products labeled "for feminine hygiene" — the better.

Diet Corner

Leaving some behind when dieting doesn't hurt a bit

By Pat Plumleigh

Leave a little behind.....

In these days of national ecology, that's good management. The lumber companies no longer denude the landscape. They practice conservation forestry, and they leave a little behind.

Conservative eatery leaves a little behind as well. Even on that careful diet where you measure each precious bit of food, it wouldn't hurt — leave a little behind. Try it at dinner tonight.

I have no doubt that you will want to consume all of your protein — somehow chomping on chewy protein constitutes the most satisfying part of mealtime.

However, let's slow it down. Really chew, slower, slower.

You see, you fool your stomach when you eat slowly. If you span your meal over 20 minutes, your stomach begins to feel full.

If you bolt everything down in one glorious gulp, full or not, your stomach will report itself empty until the 20-minute period has elapsed — it takes that long for the brain to receive the message.

Now that you have dawdled over your protein eating, you still have vegetables and dessert ahead of you. Dessert is undoubtedly fruit and milk-based and bursting with their nutrients.

What to leave behind? The last forkful of the low carbohydrate vegetables — or even the higher carbohydrate ones. When you survey your plate it should be almost, not completely, empty. Then dinner is over.

I confess that leaving a little behind is not the easiest thing in the world to do when you are accustomed to eating a little bit more.

But that's what weight reduction is all about — re-educating your eating habits and learning to live with the complete change.

(Diet Corner is a column of the Diet Workshop, Stanton, Calif.)

This is one of many European statues which grace the wide lawns encompassing the Huntington Library, art gallery and botanical gardens in San Marino. This statuary is at one end of the rose garden, and a visitor from Missouri walks closer for a better look. The roses are now in full bloom and permeate the area with their aroma.

Story by Marge Gross/Photos by H. Lorren Au Jr.

The Huntington Library draws thousands who either seek knowledge from its 5 million manuscripts, 315,000 rare books or 212,000 reference books. Others come to marvel at the exhibits in the main exhibition hall, shown here, where the Gutenberg Bible (1450-55) and "The Canterbury Tales" by Chaucer are in cases.

One of Audubon's prints, "Snowy Owl," is in one of the new cases in the Huntington Library exhibition hall.

Visitors find beauty at Huntington Library

The gardens and wide lawns surrounding Huntington Library and art gallery in San Marino have often been described as a paradise.

Scholars come to use the library's 315,000 rare books and 212,000 reference books.

Art lovers seek out the gallery which exhibits antique English and American silver, priceless porcelain, tapestries and paintings.

Those who like the outdoors can take pleasure in roaming the grounds of the 200-acre estate. In the spring, azaleas and 1,500 varieties of camellias lure thousands.

Visitors can also enjoy the peace of the Japanese garden with its tea house, bridges and quiet pools. In the rose garden, now in full bloom, the aroma of thousands of blossoms scents the air.

This haven was the gift of railroad baron Henry E. Huntington who willed the property to the state in 1927 "for the advancement and the enjoyment and education of the public."

Huntington first saw the property in 1892 when he was a guest at San Marino Ranch, as it was then called. The land belonged to Maria de Jesus and her husband, James De Barth Shorb.

Ten years later, Huntington bought the ranch and built a Georgian-Colonial style mansion with a special room for his books.

The home was not occupied until 1914, and even then the Huntingtons spent only a few months of the year there.

Huntington later decided to build a separate structure to house his book collection, and in 1920 an E-shaped library building was completed.

By the time he died, Huntington had done "about all a man could to establish his library and art gallery securely for the public," a guidebook at the complex relates.

The library, art gallery and gardens are open daily, 1 to 4:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

With the growth of Southern California's population and the influx of vacationers, more than 500,000 people a year visit the Huntington, according to Katherine Wilson, public relations coordinator.

Starting in January 1979, the city of San Marino will require Sunday visitors to call ahead for parking reservations. The call to (213) 792-6141 or 681-6601, may be made up to 24 hours prior to a visit. Sunday will be the only day parking restrictions will be in force.

Many visitors make the pilgrimage to the art gallery just to see "Pinkie" by Lawrence and "Blue Boy" by Gainsborough.

The two are not companion works, as some visitors believe, but were painted 20 years apart. The beautiful youngsters never knew each other, and Lady Petre, "Pinkie," died a few months after posing for her portrait. The guide book attributes her death "probably to tuberculosis."

Also in the main gallery are eight other Gainsboroughs and works by Lawrence, Romney and Constable.

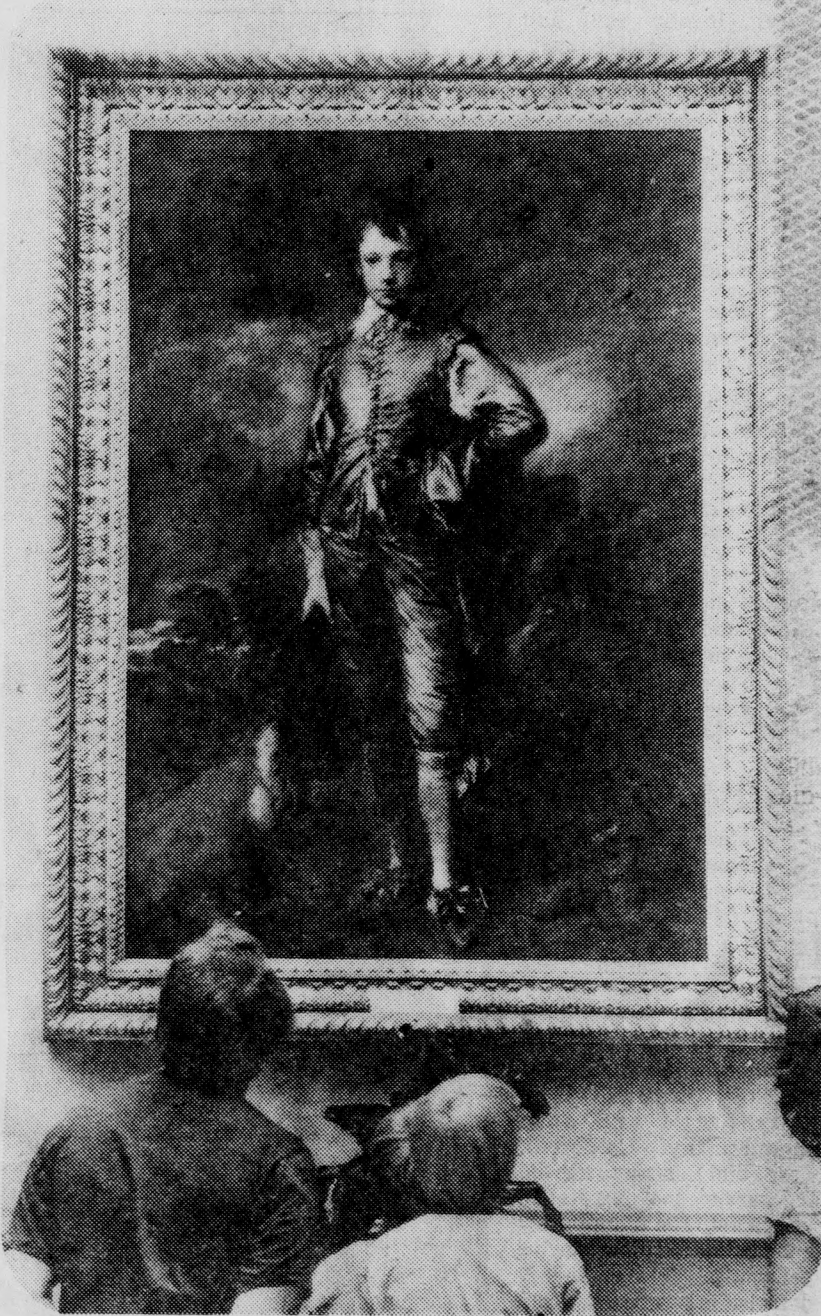

Outdoors, craftsmen in horticulture keep the grounds in tiptop condition.

The Japanese garden is a favorite spot for visitors. Set in a small canyon of five acres, paths wind up and down hillsides and around pools of gold fish and carp. At the top of a hill sits an authentic Japanese tea house. Visitors view the tea ceremony table, sleeping and living areas decorated with ikebana floral arrangements.

Also open to visitors is a Zen garden, display of bonsai plants, palm garden and Shakespeare garden. A desert garden, which covers 12 acres, has the world's largest outdoor collection of desert plants.

There are no strangers at the Huntington. While viewing the Gutenberg Bible or The Canterbury Tales in the newly renovated library, most everyone visits back and forth about the rare books.

In the gardens, people share their pleasure in the beautiful landscaping, and in the gallery, art admirers talk together in soft tones as if to avoid disturbing the men and women looking down from the canvases.

The famous painting by Gainsborough, "Blue Boy," is a major attraction for visitors to the Huntington Art Gallery in San Marino. The painting hangs in the main gallery opposite an equally famous painting, "Pinkie," by Lawrence. Viewers often think the two young people knew each other, but "Pinkie," Lady Petre, was painted nearly 20 years after "Blue Boy." Both paintings were purchased for the Huntington Gallery in the 1920s.

The Huntington Library, art gallery and botanical gardens are located at 1151 Oxford Road, San Marino. It can be reached by going west on Foothill Freeway (Route 210) exiting at Allen Avenue just east of Pasadena. A large sign will indicate the turnoff.

Drive south on Allen Avenue and follow the green Huntington signs until reaching 1151 Oxford Road. The entrance is on the right. It takes less than an hour to reach the library from the West End.

The vermilion bridge in the Japanese garden of the Huntington complex is one of the most popular photographic subjects in the garden. Visitors cannot walk over the bridge, but everyone enjoys watching the goldfish and carp swimming in the lagoon beneath it. The Japanese garden also features a 19th century house which originally came from Japan, and adjoining this garden is a Zen garden and display of bonsai plants.

Beat heat with cool drinks

One way to beat the summer heat is to make your own refreshing drinks at home. Use lots of fresh oranges and lemons to insure a really great fresh flavor plus the added bonus of vitamin C. You'll find California - Arizona oranges and lemons reasonably priced and in great abundance. So enjoy!

For quick always ready, serve-yourself drinks, keep this lemon tea recipe on tap in the refrigerator:

Fresh Lemon Tea Syrup Base
 1 1/2 cups boiling water
 8 tea bags
 1/4 cup sugar
 2 teaspoons fresh grated lemon peel
 Juice of 6 fresh lemons (1 cup)

Pour boiling water over tea bags; steep 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Add sugar, lemon peel and juice; stir to dissolve sugar. Store in covered container in refrigerator. Makes about 2 1/2 cups base.

Lemon Tea by the glass:
 1/3 cup lemon tea syrup base
 3/4 cup cold water
 Ice cubes

In large glass, combine all ingredients; stir well. Makes about 1 cup.

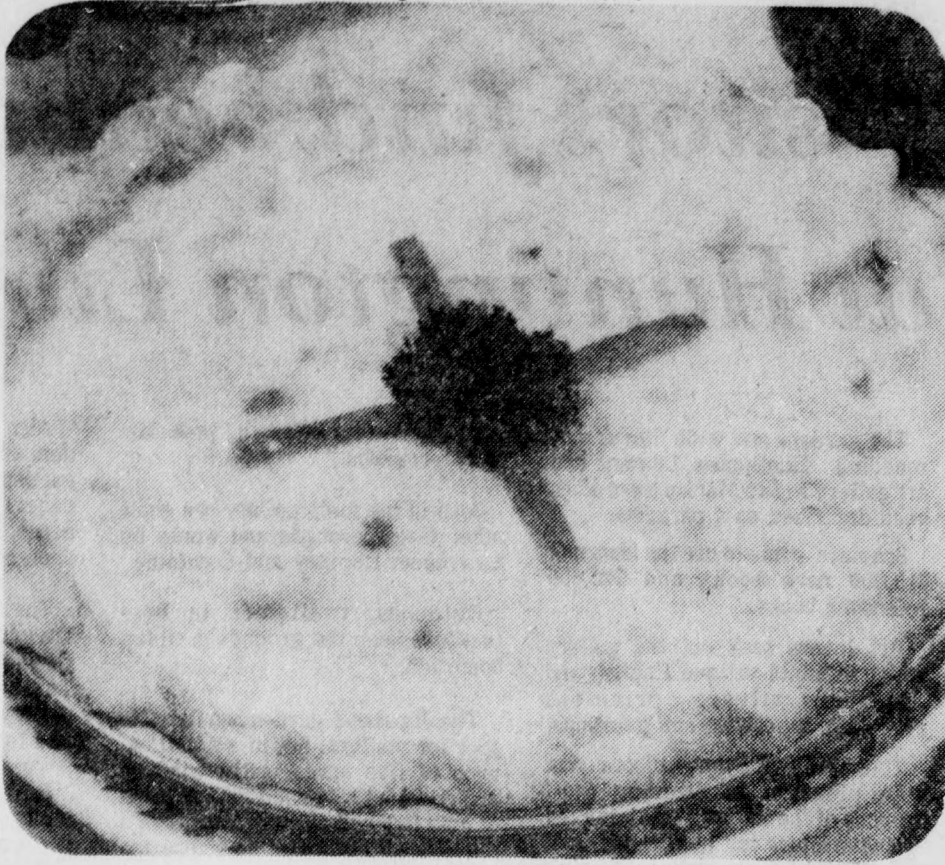

Lemon Tea by the pitcher:
 2 1/2 cups lemon tea syrup base
 6 cups cold water
 Ice cubes

In large pitcher, combine all ingredients; stir well. Makes about 8 1/2 cups (eight 8-ounce servings).

Dry parsley convenient

One of the handiest bits of convenience on the grocery shelves today is the product, dehydrated parsley flakes.

Our great-grandmothers used to dry parsley and all kinds of herbs for their own use, but it wasn't until the end of World War II that parsley flakes were dehydrated and sold commercially. California, Texas and Louisiana are the big parsley-growing states, where both the moss-curl and flat-leaved plants thrive verdantly. In the speedy dehydrating process, eight parts of fresh parsley are concentrated to one.

This delectable quiche features Swiss cheese and chopped cooked chicken. The custard part of the pie is unusually delicious because the eggs and cream are seasoned with bottled creamy Italian dressing with its zingy flavors of garlic, onion, bell peppers and other herbs.

Easy on budget

Quiche, salad is super supper

Some dishes go through a period of terrific popularity and are then forgotten. The exceptions are those dishes that are so good, easy to make and right for many occasions, they continue to make regular appearances on the table. Quiches are a good example. They're not difficult to make, and they're nutritious and easy on the budget.

Here's a delectable quiche variation. Instead of the usual ham or bacon, the pie features chopped cooked chicken with Swiss cheese.

Cheese 'n Chicken Quiche

9-inch unbaked pastry shell
 4 eggs
 1 cup (8 oz.) heavy or whipping cream
 1/2 cup Italian dressing
 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked chicken
 1 cup shredded Swiss cheese

August 31, 1978
 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, drained
 Preheat oven to 400 degrees.
 Bake pastry shell 10 minutes; remove from oven. Reduce oven to 375 degrees.
 In large bowl, beat eggs; blend in cream, creamy Italian dressing, chicken, cheese and pimiento. Pour into prepared shell; bake 40 minutes or until pie tests done. Garnish, if desired, with additional pimiento. Makes about 6 servings.

Summer treat

Try no-bake cheesecake

Cheesecake in summer, anyone?

"Oh, we like it," says a homemaker, "but I don't want to turn on my oven for an hour or more to bake it."

No need to do that! There's a whole world of cheesecakes that need no baking. And, many of them are made even more delectable with the addition of fruits and berries.

These are the no-bake, gelatin-based cheesecakes, cool to make, cool to taste.

Cool Cheesecake

With Raspberry Sauce

Crust:
1/3 cup butter, melted
1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon each, cinnamon and nutmeg
Filling:
1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple in unsweetened juice
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin

3/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1/2 cup milk
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups cottage cheese
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
Sauce:
2 packages (10-oz each) frozen raspberries in syrup, thawed

1 tablespoon cornstarch
For crust, combine all ingredients. Press mixture onto bottom and part way up sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Chill while preparing filling. For filling, drain pineapple reserving 1/2 cup juice. Combine gelatin, 1/2 cup sugar and salt in a heavy medium-sized saucepan. Add egg yolks and milk, beating until well blended. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved and mixture is slightly thickened, about 15 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in lemon peel, lemon juice and vanilla. Beat cottage cheese on high speed of mixer until creamy, about 5 minutes. Stir in reserved pineapple juice and gelatin mixture. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, until mixture is chilled and mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon, about 30 minutes. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Fold into cheese mixture. Fold in whipped cream and pineapple. Carefully pour mixture into crust. Chill several hours or overnight. Meanwhile, for sauce, drain raspberries reserving juice.

Combine small portion of reserved juice with cornstarch; blend until smooth. Combine remaining juice, cornstarch mixture and berries in a small saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Boil and stir 2 minutes. Strain out seeds; chill sauce. To serve, remove sides of springform pan and spread raspberry sauce over top of cake. Garnish with fresh raspberries and fresh mint leaves, if desired.

Note: To make individual cheesecakes, prepare 1/2 recipe crumb crust. Divide cheesecake mixture into 8 buttered 10-oz. pyrex dishes. Gently press crumb mixture onto top of cakes. Refrigerate as directed. Carefully unmold onto serving plates and spoon some of sauce over each.

cheese instead of cream cheese. Imagine having such a great dessert and not having to use the oven.

Nothing says summer like fresh fruit, and colorful, flavorful California plums say it best!

Desserts, though, are a natural for fresh plums. If you've never tried fresh plum pie, you're in for a real surprise. Our Plum Bump Tart is made quick and easy with buttermilk baking mix. Layer a circle of soft dough with fresh, cinnamon-y plum filling in between, top with additional pastry, crimp the edges and bake. Delicious!

For additional exciting ways to use and serve fresh California fruits this summer, write for your free copy of a colorful 48-page booklet. Prepared by the growers of California summer fruits, this beautifully illustrated booklet contains more than 100 tested recipes. Please send a stamped, self-addressed business-sized envelope to "Fruits of Summer," P.O. Box 255627, Sacramento, California 95825.

Plum Bump Tart
5 medium fresh California plums (about 1 pound)

3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 1/3 cups buttermilk baking mix
1/2 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 egg, lightly beaten
Halve and pit plums. Put in bowl with 1/2 cup of the sugar and cinnamon. Toss to coat. Set aside. In large bowl, blend baking mix and 2 tablespoons of the sugar. Make a well in the center. Add milk and melted butter. With fork, stir to make soft dough. Divide dough in 2 equal parts. On floured boats shape each half into a ball; then roll out two 10-inch circles. Place one circle on greased 12-inch pizza pan (or cookie sheet). Arrange plums cut side down, on dough, leaving 1/2 inch border. Sprinkle with remaining sugar mixture. Brush border with beaten egg. Cover with second circle, sealing edges with fork. Prick each plum with fork. Brush surface generously with beaten egg. Sprinkle with remaining sugar. Bake in 375 degree oven 20 to 25 minutes, or until plums are tender when pierced with a pick. Cool slightly. Serve warm, with cream. Makes 10 servings.

NOTE: This works best with ripe plums. If using a firm plum, bake longer, but cover with foil, if overbrowning occurs.

Fresh California plums baked in a tart make a quick and easy summer treat that's bound to win repeat performances. Plums are filling the market now, and trees in yards are full with the good fruit. Don't miss enjoying them this year.

THE HOT DOG VENDOR

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs.

He sold very good hot dogs.

He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were.

He stood on the side of the road and cried:

"Buy a hot dog, Mister?"

And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders.

He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.

He finally got his son home from college to help him out.

But then something happened.

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression.

The foreign situation is terrible.

The domestic situation is worse."

Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs.

And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.

"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

WHEREAS, through many amendments and deletions to the Zoning Code of the City of Upland, the numbering system on said Code has become unwieldy, and the descriptive zone titles inappropriate for the classification of the respective zones; and

WHEREAS, the City Council finds that the proposed format for the reorganization of existing planning and zoning information, requirements and standards is non-substantive in nature in that no change in content or context has been made to the existing planning, zoning, or subdivision law or regulation; and

WHEREAS, the proposed format for reorganization of the existing planning and zoning information, requirements and standards should greatly facilitate the efficient administration of the relative ordinances.

The City Council of the City of Upland does hereby order as follows:
